SCIENCE FOR PEACE

Chemistry Extension Opened

O'LEARY, the Trinity College Chemical Laboratory, the Minister for Education, Mr. Lynch, said that while playing its part in the study of science in all its branches, it should concentrate wholly on "Science for Peace."

EARLS OF THE DEAF

The bright lights and bright colours of the G.M.R. Debating Hall, the distinguished visitors and the distinguished audience provided the glittering background to a most successful inaugural meeting of the Royal Irish Agricultural Association last Saturday night.

Mr. Lynch opened his paper by apologizing for the specialist interest of his subject, "The Ear of the Deaf."

One of the most striking features of deafness, Dr. Bode pointed out, was the aid of visual means in the treatment of deafness. The use of sign language was an example of the efficiency of the operations which this peculiar disease, and the amazing strides taken in comparatively recent years in the improvement of both auditive and visual equipment. These operations have now acquired a high proportion of success in the relief of deafness. Dr. Bode remarked that much remained to be done in this sphere, but concluded by saying that the hopes of present were as exciting as those of the future.

Edward O'Boherty, M.C., read a paper on "Medical Social Help and Training Required at the Present Time." He stressed the necessity of early recognition of deafness, and the necessity of the mother.

Mr. Lynch entertained with the story of his own deafness and its cure, with Mr. Frank Crippen, F.R.C.P.I., who very witty speech indeed, the high- light of which was perhaps his account of his own hearing aid, the "Black Michael."

The Churches Worship

One of the most striking features of our age is its inability to find any satisfaction in worship. The fact is that modern man appears to have lost the capacity for Christian worship, because he has quite simply put himself in the hands of the cinema, that false service of God. The remarkable analysis of the present day cinema dilemma was given by Mr. A. F. K. Earle when he gave his address to the College Theological Society on Sunday afternoon.

The paper, which was entitled "The Church's Worship," was delivered in a carefully planned form the various facets of the subject. But the whole was not content merely to describe the ideal; he compared them with the existing situation in the Churches, and was bold enough to attack several long established traditions. It was a broad paper, dealing with many aspects, which is not readily readable, and of which no serious critic, even of the Auditor, for the mixture of irrelevancies, was in evidence for perplexing aspects of the subject.

The Bishop of Cashel, Rev. H. M. L. F. F. Bolton, M.A., D.D., Chancellor. Mr. Lynch defended the amount of money spent on scientific education in schools which had come in for recent criticism and said it was not enough for universities to ask for more.

He submitted a number of questions which he considered should be answered in the universities' own interest and in that of the State. These included questions as to whether the universities should be adequately equipped to meet Ireland's increasing demand for scientists, and said: "In our own resources, Aus- tralia has been here for so short a time. Then there are our own resources, and £106,000 had been received from "Science for Peace.""

COMMUNISM COUNTED OUT

On Tuesday the first meeting of the International Affairs Association was held in the form of a debate, with the motion, "Communism is the only solution for Ireland."

Mr. J. W. Dillon proposed, while Mr. W. Dillon opposed, and after various speakers both set forth their cases and gentlemen from many countries took part, the motion was carried by a large majority. On Monday and the Association holds its Annual Ball.

For three centuries or more, Porton has sent many of its products to Trinity. For four years of hard work and reasonable hard work the graduated or successful doctor, chancello of the Church of Ireland or colonial administrators. It occasionally sends someone like Michael Knight. He has just gained his M.D., four years’ talking and reasonably hard work. As a speaker he became Assistant of the Hist. following a year as

Dr. Sheffy’s popular remark that “Man is a political animal,” is a highly trite and a trite thing to say about the new President of the U.P.S. Any attempt to prove this statement by a series of historical events is bound to fail when the matter was decisively disposed at the end of the 19th century. Belle richardson is expected to be invincible at the next ‘Beauties’ in the Phil. Following a year as Assistant of the Hist. he is about to make the first writing in the inaugural.

To BULGARIA for CHESS

This year an Irish team participated in the World Student Chess Tournament for the first time; in previous years our organizers had been unable to contain their enthusiasm in the face of problems requiring both interest and ingenuity, but this year the initial interest was heightened by the triumph of a trip behind the "Iron Curtain" to Vienna in Bulgaria, and by the increasing number of students, which the Bulgarians sent us from time to time, informing prospective competitors how many times there was in the atmosphere, how many grams of beef there were for breakfast, and that a P.T. instructor had been engaged to help students to limber up before the mental tournaments of the day. By 8.30 in the evening, the type of finding a seat on the board had become.

A crack at Stake

Could's white-knighted boy, Richard Stack, stuck severely to civilization last Sunday and invited David Gilliat and Peter Haley-Douglas to a very shaky party at Stake. Also there was Barry Dunham, not quite making it intellectually. Michael Leach of Trinity, officially, was socially under Raymond Kennedy's export unit.

One last word, designed in the interests of Freshmen. Mind that only Conan Doyle, and that only Philo Farnsworth (famously) is to whom no one should introduce anything, even.

Dublin Sketches: The NEWSVENDOR

"Down Press! Stile-Addle!"—a never-ending cry. All Dublin is a news-agent's paradise. All Dublin is a news-agent's paradise.

A Treasury bunch, five abreast and overweighed, would slip past them, bringen their work to the eye, and insist on a signature under the head "Stile-Addle!"—a never-ending cry.

"Times!" please. No, not the "times." Oh, well, that will do.

Anatomical Anecdote

To the brave supporters who endured the hostile weather in the Park on Saturday, Trinity had little to offer in the way of exciting rugby. For this deficiency, the blame rests equally on both sides, since one team, though it be superior to the other, cannot provide good football when their opponents are determined to spoil. This was the first match Trinity have drawn for almost three years and, though the result was poor, it was a decided improvement on the previous week's display. The forwards' tackling was efficient and the supply of the ball should have been more plentiful, but the backs were held up by the tackles. They, however, finding the ball slightly in the open, and to pay more attention to passing than to quick thinking, passed threequarters approached the Monkstown winning and at times, in possession, the backs. They, however, finding the ball ample to ensure at least one try by the forwards, but were unable to take it. On one occasion it be much superior to the other, equally on both sides, since one team, never before. Here is a sport where you will enjoy the outdoor under the supervision of Paddy Duffy, the national coach, have an absolute advantage of mind and body.

The membership of the club is open to all students, female and male, whose interests coincide with those of Trinity Rugby. It is proposed to hold the annual general meeting very soon, wherein the officers and members of the club will be elected for the forthcoming season, and new members will be admitted. It is anticipated that the club will continue to flourish, and that the members will spend the season looking forward to the prospects of competition, and the possibility of an exciting game in the coming season. The club will also be organizing various social events, including a series of matches against other universities. The club hopes to continue to impress the public with its determination and skill, and to attract more members to the game of rugby.

The Aristocratic Sport

Many people think that fencing is a dying art. In one way they believe correctly, for it has always been a sport for the aristocracy. In earlier times, only the nobility were allowed to practice the art. In one way they believe correctly, for it has always been a sport for the aristocracy.
